Salers Cattle (pronounced Sal-air) are considered one of the world's oldest pure breeds of cattle, Originating from France, where they were used as suckler cattle, for cheese production and draught animals, they have evolved to handle harsh conditions; with excellent structural characteristics, have maximum feed conversion and are renowned as perhaps the best bovine species for ease of calving, due to the measurably larger pelvic area, low birthweights and new-born calf shape.

Salers excel in maternal traits, outstanding capacity to forage and continue to produce live calves for much longer than other breeds. Growth rates and quality of carcass yield are well above average making Salers the ideal choice for any Pure herd or as a infusion into commercial herds. The only thing missing when you visit a Salers property are the Calf Pulling devices.
